BOOK

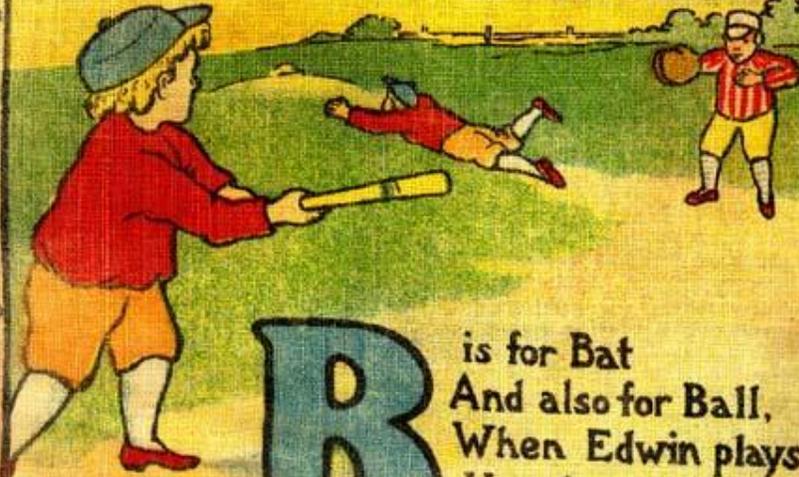

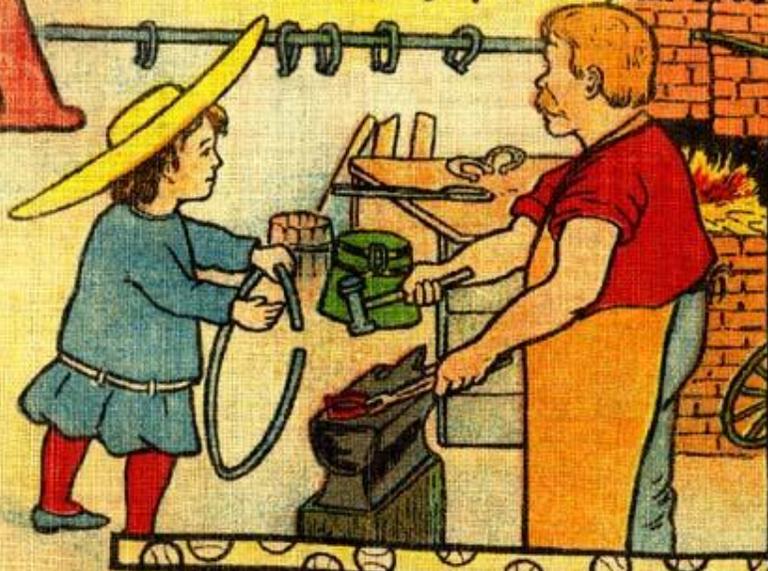

AKRON, O.

THE SAALFIELD PUB. COMPANY.
CHICAGO. NEW YORK.

A

is the Anvil on which the blacksmith does pound,
While the bright shining sparks fly all around.

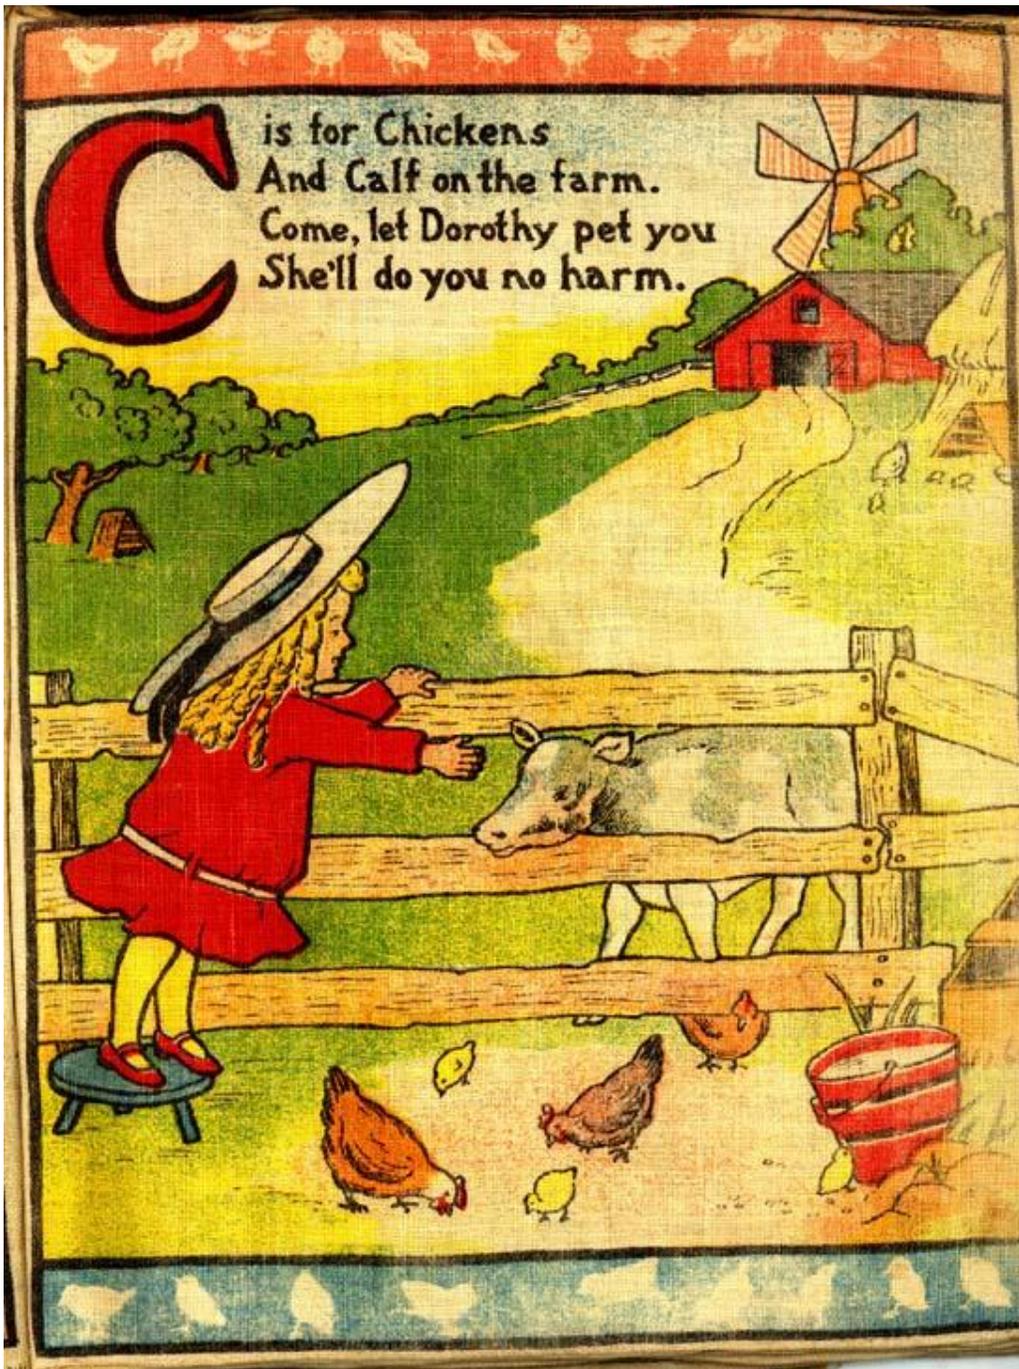

B

is for Bat
And also for Ball,
When Edwin plays
He always gets a hard fall.

C

is for Chickens
And Calf on the farm.
Come, let Dorothy pet you She'll do you no harm.

D

is for Daisies
And my Doggie, too;
I think he's the finest
In the town, don't you?

E

is for Eggs
in the nest in the tree
Ralph climbed up to count them
There were only three.

F

is for Fourth of July, Firecrackers and Fun,
Thoroughly enjoyed by the boys
But which makes the girls run.

G is for Gobbler in a wrathful state,
Because a small dog crept under the gate.

H is the House
Harold's building today,
And he merrily whistles
As he hammers away.

I

are the irons with which Marjorie will press out each wrinkle and crease in her dolly's new dress

J

is for Jockey in his red jacket;
As he goes racing by he makes a terrible racket.

K

is the Kennel
Painted bright red,
Where every night little Bob Puts Jack to bed.

L

is the Ladder
Up which we will climb
To pick the ripe cherries,-
They are juicy and prime.

M

is the Mailman so big and tall,
When he holds up the letters Charlotte cannot reach them at all.

N

is for Nurse
Who is always neat.
Who takes good care of baby,
Keeps her clean and sweet.

O

is the Owl
Who calls out,
"Who? Who?
I don't sleep in the night time
Now, pray, why do you?"

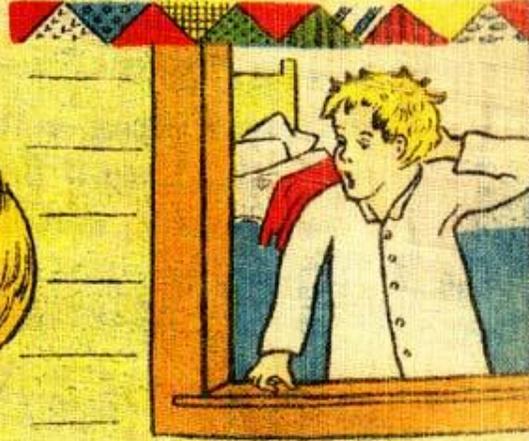

P

is for Peacock Strutting proudly around.
One day, imitating him,
Adelaide I found.

Q

is the Quilt on which Helen will sew, While Baby lays the blocks all out in a row.

R

is for the Rooster
Who says "Cock-a-doodle-do!
If I didn't crow in the morning
Who'd wake up you?"

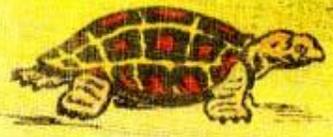

S

is the Spider
On an old stump;
To get away from it
Don will have to jump.

T

is for Turtle Creeping along in the shade,
Of which Jimmy Bright-Eyes
Is terribly afraid.

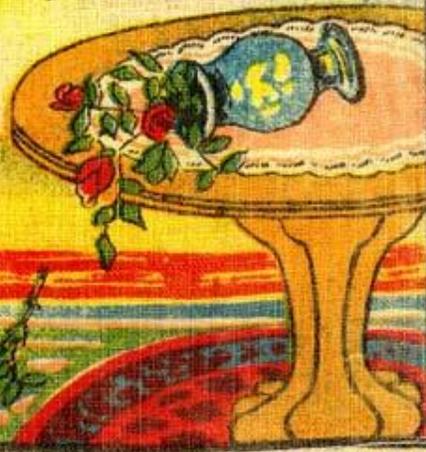

U

is for Urchin
With dirty face and touseled hair,
And also for Ursa,
A big brown bear.

V

is for Vase
Which stood on the table,
But was tipped over
By meddlesome Mabel.

W

is for Weather-vane
Made of bright tin;
And also for Wind-wheels
Which we all like to spin.

X

looks like the horse
On which Grandpa saws wood:

I would surely help him
If I thought that I could

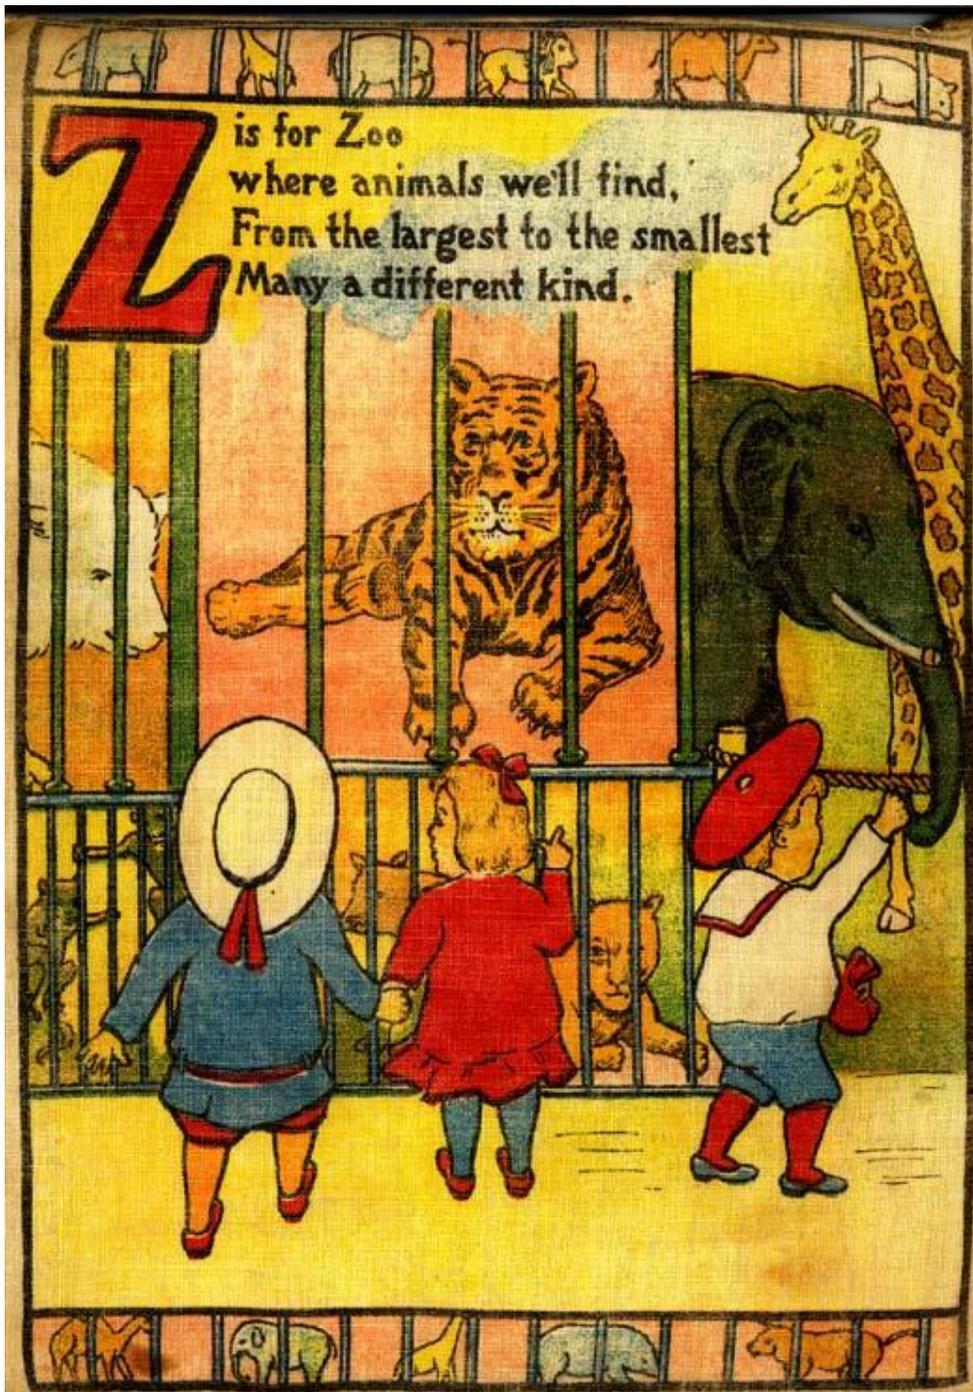

Y

is for the Yarn
With which kitty will play
Till Grandma spies him,
Then he will scamper away.

Z

is for Zoo where animals we'll find,
From the largest to the smallest
Many a different kind.

1, 2,

Were little friends true.

3, 4,

They hid behind the door.

5, 6,

They cut up tricks.

7, 8,

Then to school they were late.

9, 10,

They were sent home again.
