Автори:

Заграновська О.І., асистент кафедри англійської філології факультету іноземних мов Прикарпатського національного університету імені Василя Стефаника;

Ловчук Ю.Ю., асистент кафедри англійської філології факультету іноземних мов Прикарпатського національного університету імені Василя Стефаника.

Навчально-методичний посібник “The Guide to the Series: “Young Sheldon” Teacher’s book розроблено з метою збагачення змісту, удосконалення навичок слухання автентичного матеріалу та підвищення якості філологічної підготовки студентів 1-3 курсів, які вивчають англійську мову як фахову дисципліну або другу іноземну мову у закладах вищої освіти.

Посібник містить ключі до завдань, що уможлиблює проконтролювати якість розуміння англомовних текстів студентами, а також забезпечить швидкий та ефективний контроль розуміння автентичного мовлення та виконання усіх завдань студентами на заняттях з іноземної мови. Ґрунтовно розроблені завдання для самостійної роботи студентів по темі Family relationship роблять посібник ефективним та логічно структурованим.

Студентам запропоновано набір завдань різних видів, а також рекомендації, як самостійно працювати над розвитком навичок слухання та сприймання іноземної мови. Матеріал посібника можна використовувати у закладах вищої освіти, а також для проведення факультативних занять у гімназіях, гуманітарних ліцеях, загальноосвітніх школах із поглибленим вивченням іноземних мов, для слухачів курсів та осіб, які самостійно вивчають англійську мову.

Preface

The manual consists of listening tasks accompanied by authentic videos. Each task includes clear instructions how to do it correctly. The typical task types include: multiple choice, true/false, matching and gap filling, translation and discussion. Some tips how to do different types of tasks:

TRUE/FALSE

In this type of task, you need to decide if the given statements convey the same information as used in the text (and mark them True) or different (and mark them False).

- Remember that your task is to decide if a statement is true or false in reference to the text, not if it is true in general;
- remember that the questions follow the order of the information in the text;
- many true or false statements are built in such a way that the information from the text is conveyed by means of synonyms or antonyms.

MULTIPLE CHOICE

In a multiple choice task you need to rule out the incorrect answers and choose one answer that is correct. The correct answer should contain the same information as the video.

- Before you start watching the video, first read all the questions and then find in the video the parts that correspond to each question – it can be a single word, a sentence or a paragraph;
- remember that the questions follow the order of the information in the video. It is safe to assume that the answer to question number two will be somewhere before the answer to question number three. This might help you if you are not sure where to look for the answer to a particular question;
- never choose the answer on the basis of one word, as both the correct and incorrect answers may contain the same words used in the video. Pay attention to the general context of the story, which will help you rule out the answers which are not consistent with it;

- when choosing the correct answer, always double check if the information in the questions is the same as what is in the text. You may want to underline the parts of the episode that contain the answer you need, which will help you finish the task more quickly;

- it is important for you to be able to locate the main idea of the story and separate it from ideas which are only details or illustration of the main idea. This will help you answer the questions correctly as a lot of wrong options in the exam questions ask about ideas of secondary importance.

GAPPED TEXT (MATCHING)

This is a special type of matching task in which you have a text with some parts (full sentences or parts of sentences) missing from it. As with all the other types of reading tasks, before you start doing the task, read the text ignoring the gaps to get the overall idea of what it is about.

- When completing the gaps, look for words which are used to refer to sentences that come before or after the gaps. Pay attention to:

* cause and effect markers: if a sentence talks about an action, then the next one will most probably talk about its effect;

* pronouns and determiners: if they are used in the sentences, they refer to the people or things that are already mentioned in the text;

* chronology markers: look for words like afterwards, eventually, finally which show the order of events;

* vocabulary paraphrases: neighbouring sentences often refer to the same person, thing or concept but use different words or phrases to describe them.

GAP FILLING

In this type of task, you will get a set of gapped sentences, a form, or a fact file with some information missing. Your task will be to complete the gaps using the information you find in the text. The sentences you need to complete are only paraphrases of what you read in the text – they convey the same information, but they are not phrased in the same way.

- Sometimes the instructions specify the number of words you can write, so make sure your answers are the right length. If the instructions say you have to write one or two words, your solution of three words will not be accepted, although otherwise it may be correct;
- read the gapped sentences carefully before you start doing the task and try to guess what word category is missing from each gap. If you do this, it will be easier for you to find the correct answers;
- the sentences you have to complete are given in the same order as the information in the text. Bear this in mind when you work through the task.

STUDENT'S SELF-STUDY

I. Watch 7 movies and write a film review on any of them:

1. Hotel Mumbai, USA, Australia, 2018

(action, thriller, drama, history)

<https://kinogo.film/films/603-otel-mumbai-protivostoyanie.html>

The movie, based on a true story, takes place at the end of November 2008 at the TajMahal Palace Hotel in Mumbai. A day at one of the city's most luxurious hotels begins with the usual routine: staff check in new guests, cooks work in the kitchen, and maids clean the rooms. In the morning, an American David is registered at the hotel along with his wife Zahra, a child and his nanny, but their rest is interrupted by a group of terrorists who burst into the hotel and begin to shoot everyone in a row. One of the kitchen workers manages to get some of the guests out, and David decides to sneak into his room to save the child. Meanwhile, the local police are doing everything they can stop the wave of violence.

2. About Time, Great Britain, 2013

(action, thriller, drama, history)

<https://kinogo.film/search/films/about%20time>

A twenty-one-year-old guy named Tim Lake is in the center of the plot of the film. He is a very good person, and dreams of great and bright love. One day Tim finds out that he has an amazing gift - he can travel in time. This is very shocking to the guy, but his father calms him down and says that all men in their family possessed this ability. While traveling in time, Tim cannot influence the course of history, but he is able to influence the course of his life. Without thinking twice, the hero begins to use the gift to win the girl Mary, over and over again returning to the past. But Tim did not take into account one thing that the frequent use of the gift can lead to negative consequences, and most importantly - irreversible.

3. Kung Fu Panda: Secrets of the Masters, USA, 2011

<https://kinogo.film/comedy/36776-kung-fu-panda-sekrety-masterov.html>

A short cartoon is about the next adventures of the beloved Panda and his comrades from director Anthony Leonids. The funny friends who fell in love with their little viewer from the full-length film "Kung Fu Panda" again find themselves in a string of events. The main character, an adorable panda named Po, and five of the best fighters, consisting of the Crane, Tigress, Praying Mantis, Monkey and Viper, finds himself at a secret exhibition of the best masters.

Poe had long planned to show his friends the historical heritage of the martial arts, but for some reason they refused all the time. But with a little trick, he managed to lure his comrades to the most legendary event of this century. There, our fighting company met with the masters of the past, who have already become legends, and learned their stories. So, Rhino and Raging Fang received their very first portion of fame in ordinary street battles. But only after they had to unite to defeat the real evil, their martial skills and talents were fully revealed.

In this entertaining story, friends learned their own past and understood a lot. It turns out that in order to win, it is necessary to act as a team, because only feeling a loyal friend nearby can you fight a strong opponent and demonstrate your best qualities.

4. The King's Speech, Great Britain, USA, Australia, 2010

(drama, biography, history)

<https://www.amazon.com/Kings-Speech-Colin-Firth/dp/B004R36QUE>

The film is set in the first half of the 20th century in Great Britain. In the center of the plot is the Duke of York Albert. He has all the prerequisites to become the future king, but one unpleasant moment spoils the whole picture: every time Albert has to speak in public, he involuntarily begins to stutter very strongly. He already turned to the best specialists, but he could not get rid of the speech defect. One day, his wife Elizabeth invites her husband to turn to the Australian specialist Lionel Logue, who has no medical education, whose methods, although contradictory, yield results. After several sessions, Albert begins to make great strides, and his ailment begins to recede.

On January 20, 1936, he was proclaimed King George VI, and Logue has been helping the monarch fight stuttering for many years.

5. The Nevers, Great Britain, USA, 2021

(fantasy, action, drama, history)

<https://www.flicks.co.uk/tv/the-nevers-season-1/>

In the last years of the reign of Queen Victoria, women with unusual abilities begin to appear in London. Among them are Amalia Tru, a mysterious and highly intelligent widow, and her friend Penance Adair, a brilliant young inventor. They are the leaders of this new lower class and are creating a community around them in order to fight supernatural (and not only) beings.

6. The Handmaid's Tale, USA, 2017

How to Write a Movie Review

While there's no perfect approach to writing a movie review, there are definitely best practices that every aspiring reviewer can consider. Here are nine tips on writing a compelling piece.

1. Watch the film at least once.

When writing a film review, once is necessary, but twice is preferable. It's impossible to capture every detail and thought only after one viewing. Throughout watching the film, taking detailed notes is also a good idea. This will help the writing process and make it easy to refer to your in-the-moment thoughts and reactions.

2. Express your opinions and support your criticism.

Professional reviewers do not shy away from telling their readers whether they thought a movie was good, bad, or indifferent. In fact, readers rely on those reviewers whose tastes reflect their own. Be sure to back up these thoughts with specifics—a disappointing performance, a ridiculous plot, beautiful cinematography, difficult material that leaves you thinking, and so on. Professional reviewers can express why and how they came to their criticism.

3. Consider your audience.

Are you writing for a fan site or a news outlet? Who will read your pieces, and what are their interests? Knowing who your readers are can help you decide what elements of the movie to highlight. You can also adjust your writing style to fit the target audience and the tone they're used to reading.

4. Talk about the acting.

Many casual filmgoers will be inspired to see a movie if a favorite actor is in it, so you should probably spend a little space talking about the performances. Does the film feature a seasoned actor in a new kind of role or a brilliant performance from a rising star? How was the acting? Feedback about how well the actors handled the script, the dynamics in an ensemble, and so much more can help describe how the actors did in any given film.

5. Call out directors, cinematographers, and special effects.

This is where your film geek can really shine. Tell your readers about the highlights or missteps of directors, cinematographers, costume designers, and CGI. What worked, what surprised you, and what fell short of expectations are all great questions to address in the body of your review. It helps to have some knowledge of filmmaking, as well. That's why film students with writing experience can actually make great reviewers. At NYFA, for instance, many film students study a range of topics relating to film that can include screenwriting, producing, and much more.

6. No spoilers!

Give your readers some idea of the plot, but be careful not to include any spoilers. Remember, the point of a good review is to get people interested in going to the movie. Don't get over-excited and ruin it for them!

7. Study the professionals.

As with all writing endeavors, the more you read, the better. And when you read film reviews that you like (or don't like), think about why. Use your critical eye to consider why one reviewer has a hundred thousand followers and another only has two. Be sure to read the publications where you'd like your writing to appear as a template for your reviews, and don't forget to read the submission guidelines. A few examples of film review professionals include Rotten Tomatoes, Roger Ebert, and Film Comment.

8. Reread, rewrite, and edit.

Edit your work. Your opinions will not be taken seriously if you misspell the director's name or can't put together a grammatically correct sentence. Take the time to check your spelling and edit your piece for organizational flow.

9. Find your voice.

The best reviewers have a distinct personality that comes across in their writing. This does not happen overnight, so take every opportunity to write as an opportunity to develop your own style and voice that will grab the reader's attention and keep them coming back for more.
